Comments from Deacon Dale Brown
We are called to trust and have faith that our God, our eternal Father who loves us and is always watching over us, is all-powerful. Today when we pray the Creed, let's relish those words, praying them right from the heart: "I believe in one God, the Father almighty, maker of heaven and earth..." But how can we apply this beautiful and encouraging truth to our daily lives? St Ignatius of Loyola, the sixteenth-century knight turned priest who founded the Jesuits, has a good piece of advice in this regard. He used to say that a true Christian should "pray as if everything depended upon God but work as if everything depended upon himself." This sounds like a contradiction, but it isn't. When life's storms batter us, our families, and our communities, our first reaction should always be the same as the reaction of the Apostles in today's Gospel: to go to Jesus, to wake him up, to place our confidence in him, through sincere, heart-to-heart prayer. He will hear us, because he is always listening. And then, having put the situation in God's hands, the best way to show him that we truly trust him is to confidently do whatever we can to help achieve the outcome we think is best - whatever next step occurs to us. A wide receiver who trusts in his quarterback won't stay on the sidelines, fearful and doubtful. He will get out onto the field and go out for a pass, doing his best to get open and score. God is our quarterback, and he has chosen to build his Kingdom in this world through our cooperation. Today, as he renews his commitment to us in this Mass, let's renew our confidence in him, by promising to get back into the game with gusto this week.

Rest in Peace
Please pray for the repose of the soul of Ellis Guerra, mother of Caroline Former.

Our sympathy and prayers...
For the family & friends, that they may know God’s love & comfort during this time.
